THIS IS JOHNNY FOOTBALL

Welcome to the new era of Aggie football.

Thankfully, Texas A&M is finally home in its new conference, with its new head coach leading a new-look football program wearing new uniforms with a new pregame entrance and a new... well...you get the idea.

Oh, and there's that new quarterback. You may have heard someone compare him to Bucky Richardson or Doug Flutie or some other legendary quarterback. A high school coach once called him "Brett Favre on a motorcycle."

Fact is, Johnny Manziel is already a legend – a high school football legend, that is. As a senior at Tivy High School in Kerrville, Manziel was named the Texas AP Player of the Year after accumulating over 5,000 yards and 77 touchdowns. In his first varsity start as a sophomore, Manziel accounted for 380 yards of total offense and six of the Antlers' seven touchdowns in a 50-20 victory. Coaches and fans knew right away that they had something special on their hands.

I was fortunate enough to see Manziel play during his senior year against three-time defending state champion Lake Travis High School in Austin. He had a career-high 273 yards rushing in the game and nearly led his team to an improbable victory (they lost, 33-37). Like everyone else, I was blown away by his effortless playmaking ability.

Now, the redshirt freshman has taken command of the A&M offense and is showcasing the skillset that made him a high school football legend. His uncanny ability to make something out of nothing has left fans and teammates in awe.

In his debut against Florida, Manziel was often spectacular. Against SMU, he scored six touchdowns and set an A&M freshman record with 294 passing yards – without playing in the fourth quarter.

Some have called him "TV Johnny." Center Patrick Lewis called him a playmaker. Wide receiver Uzoma Nwachukwu called him "Captain Amazing."

No matter what you call him, it's clear that the Aggies are now playing "Johnny Football" and the legend of Johnny Manziel, the college quarterback, is just beginning.

FIVE CATCH

BY JEREMY KSIONDA '04

If you enjoy watching football as much as we do, don't miss out on the Friday night lights this fall featuring some talented future Aggies. Here are five high school games to catch if you can...

DALLAS SKYLINE VS DALLAS JESUIT

Sept. 28: Dallas Jesuit High School
 Skyline DL Kerrick Huggins (TAMU), DB Cedric Collins (TAMU)
 Dallas Jesuit OL L. Gustafson (TAMU)

BISHOP DUNNE VS PRESTONWOOD CHRISTIAN

Oct. 5: Bishop Dunne High School
 Bishop Dunne OL Ishmael Wilson (TAMU)
 Prestonwood Christian LB Mike Mitchell, Ath Mickey Mitchell, WR Michael Irvin

CEDAR HILL VS MANSFIELD TIMBERVIEW

Oct. 26: Mansfield Timberview High School
 Cedar Hill WR Laquavonte Gonzales (TAMU)
 WR Quincy Adeboyejo (TAMU)

MANVEL VS PEARLAND

Nov. 2: The Rig (Pearland)
 Manvel WR Kyrion Parker (TAMU), CB Tavares Garner (TAMU), WR Austin Bennett (OU)

ROSENBERG TERRY VS ANGLETON

Nov. 9: Terry High School
 Terry WR Derrick Griffin (TAMU), S Victor Davis (TAMU)

This Swaggercopter sign was among the many clever signs displayed in Aggieland for ESPN's College GameDay on Sept. 8. Texas A&M head coach Kevin Sumlin made headlines five days earlier when he arrived at the St. Pius X Senior High School for a game in a nation's capital. The assistant recruiting coordinator Clarence McKinney, Sumlin made the trip to watch Aggie recruits from coach Kurt Stewart, as well as the No. 1 prospect in Texas, Ricky Seals-Jones.

The first half of Texas A&M's inaugural season in the SEC couldn't have been scripted much better. Following an early season loss to San Diego, the Aggies rattled off nine consecutive victories, including four against their new conference foes. In the win over Auburn on Sept. 23, sophomore goalkeeper Jordan Day tied the SEC record for most consecutive shutouts by a goalkeeper (7). With a 10-1 record (4-0 in SEC), A&M is on top of the SEC West standings. It marks the first time the Aggies have started 4-0 in league action since the 2006 campaign.

FIVE QUESTIONS FOR COACH G

BY KYRSTEN GARCIA '11

ON THE TEAM'S DEPTH...

It's a smaller roster, but we have about sixteen starters on the team. It's a matter of who's playing well, who's healthy and who's going to be the most effective fit for us to win on any given day.

ON SOPHOMORE SENSATION KELLEY MONOGUE...

She's a special player. She's incredibly gifted and skilled at putting the ball in the back of the net, which is the most coveted skill in our sport. She is special in how she plays and does a great job of making us very efficient in our attack.

ON THE TEAM CAPTAINS...

Our three captains have been outstanding. Senior Beth West has a lot of national, international and big game experience for us. Jayne Eadie also has a lot of international experience. She redshirted last year after transferring from Oregon State. She really bonded with the team last year and has great leadership skills. Rachel Lenz is also a great leader. She's a two-time all-conference player and is a great example of what we mean by hard work.

ON THE SEC...

It's a deeper league than the Big 12, but our goals don't change. Our goal is to win a national championship and pick up as much hardware as we can along the way.

ON REFLECTING BACK OVER THE LAST 20 YEARS OF AGGIE SOCCER...

It's been neat to see how far we've come. In our first year, we had to play our games at what is now A&M Consolidated Middle School on Old Tiger Field. Reed Arena and the current soccer and softball stadiums were just open fields. The program has come a long way and I've really enjoyed seeing it evolve to what it has become. AG

Texas A&M head coach Laurie Corbelli celebrated the 500th win of her 26-year head coaching career and her 400th victory in her 20th season at the helm of the Aggies in A&M's season-opening victory over Texas State. Corbelli's squad recorded A&M's first-ever SEC victory in any sport by defeating Ole Miss on Sept. 14. The Aggies have been one of the hottest teams in the country, building a nine-match winning streak before falling to Kentucky at home for their first conference loss.

GAME DAY MEAL: SNOW'S BBQ

BY JASON MCCONNELL '01

We first heard about Snow's BBQ when our friend Matt Simon (@1MattSimon), the new director of digital media for Aggie Athletics, tweeted about waiting in a long line early on a Saturday morning to get some BBQ. A long line for BBQ on a Saturday morning? Obviously that peaked my interest and I immediately started searching for more information about this place.

Now, you should know that Brian and I love BBQ. A lot. Not in the "Let's have some BBQ for a quiet Saturday afternoon picnic" sort of way. It is more like the "I hope your hand does not come in between my beef and my mouth" sort of way.

We go out of our way to find the best BBQ. On the way to cover Aggie basketball in the 2010 NCAA regional in Chicago, we stopped in Memphis to try some authentic "Memphis-style" BBQ. While covering the Aggies' final visit to Allen Fieldhouse last season, we stopped at two legendary BBQ destinations in Kansas City - Arthur Bryant's and Oklahoma Joe's. At SEC Media Days in Alabama this summer, we stopped at not one, but two different BBQ joints to get a taste of the deep south. We have even managed to detour to the great BBQ stops in Lockhart while on the way to cover events in Austin.

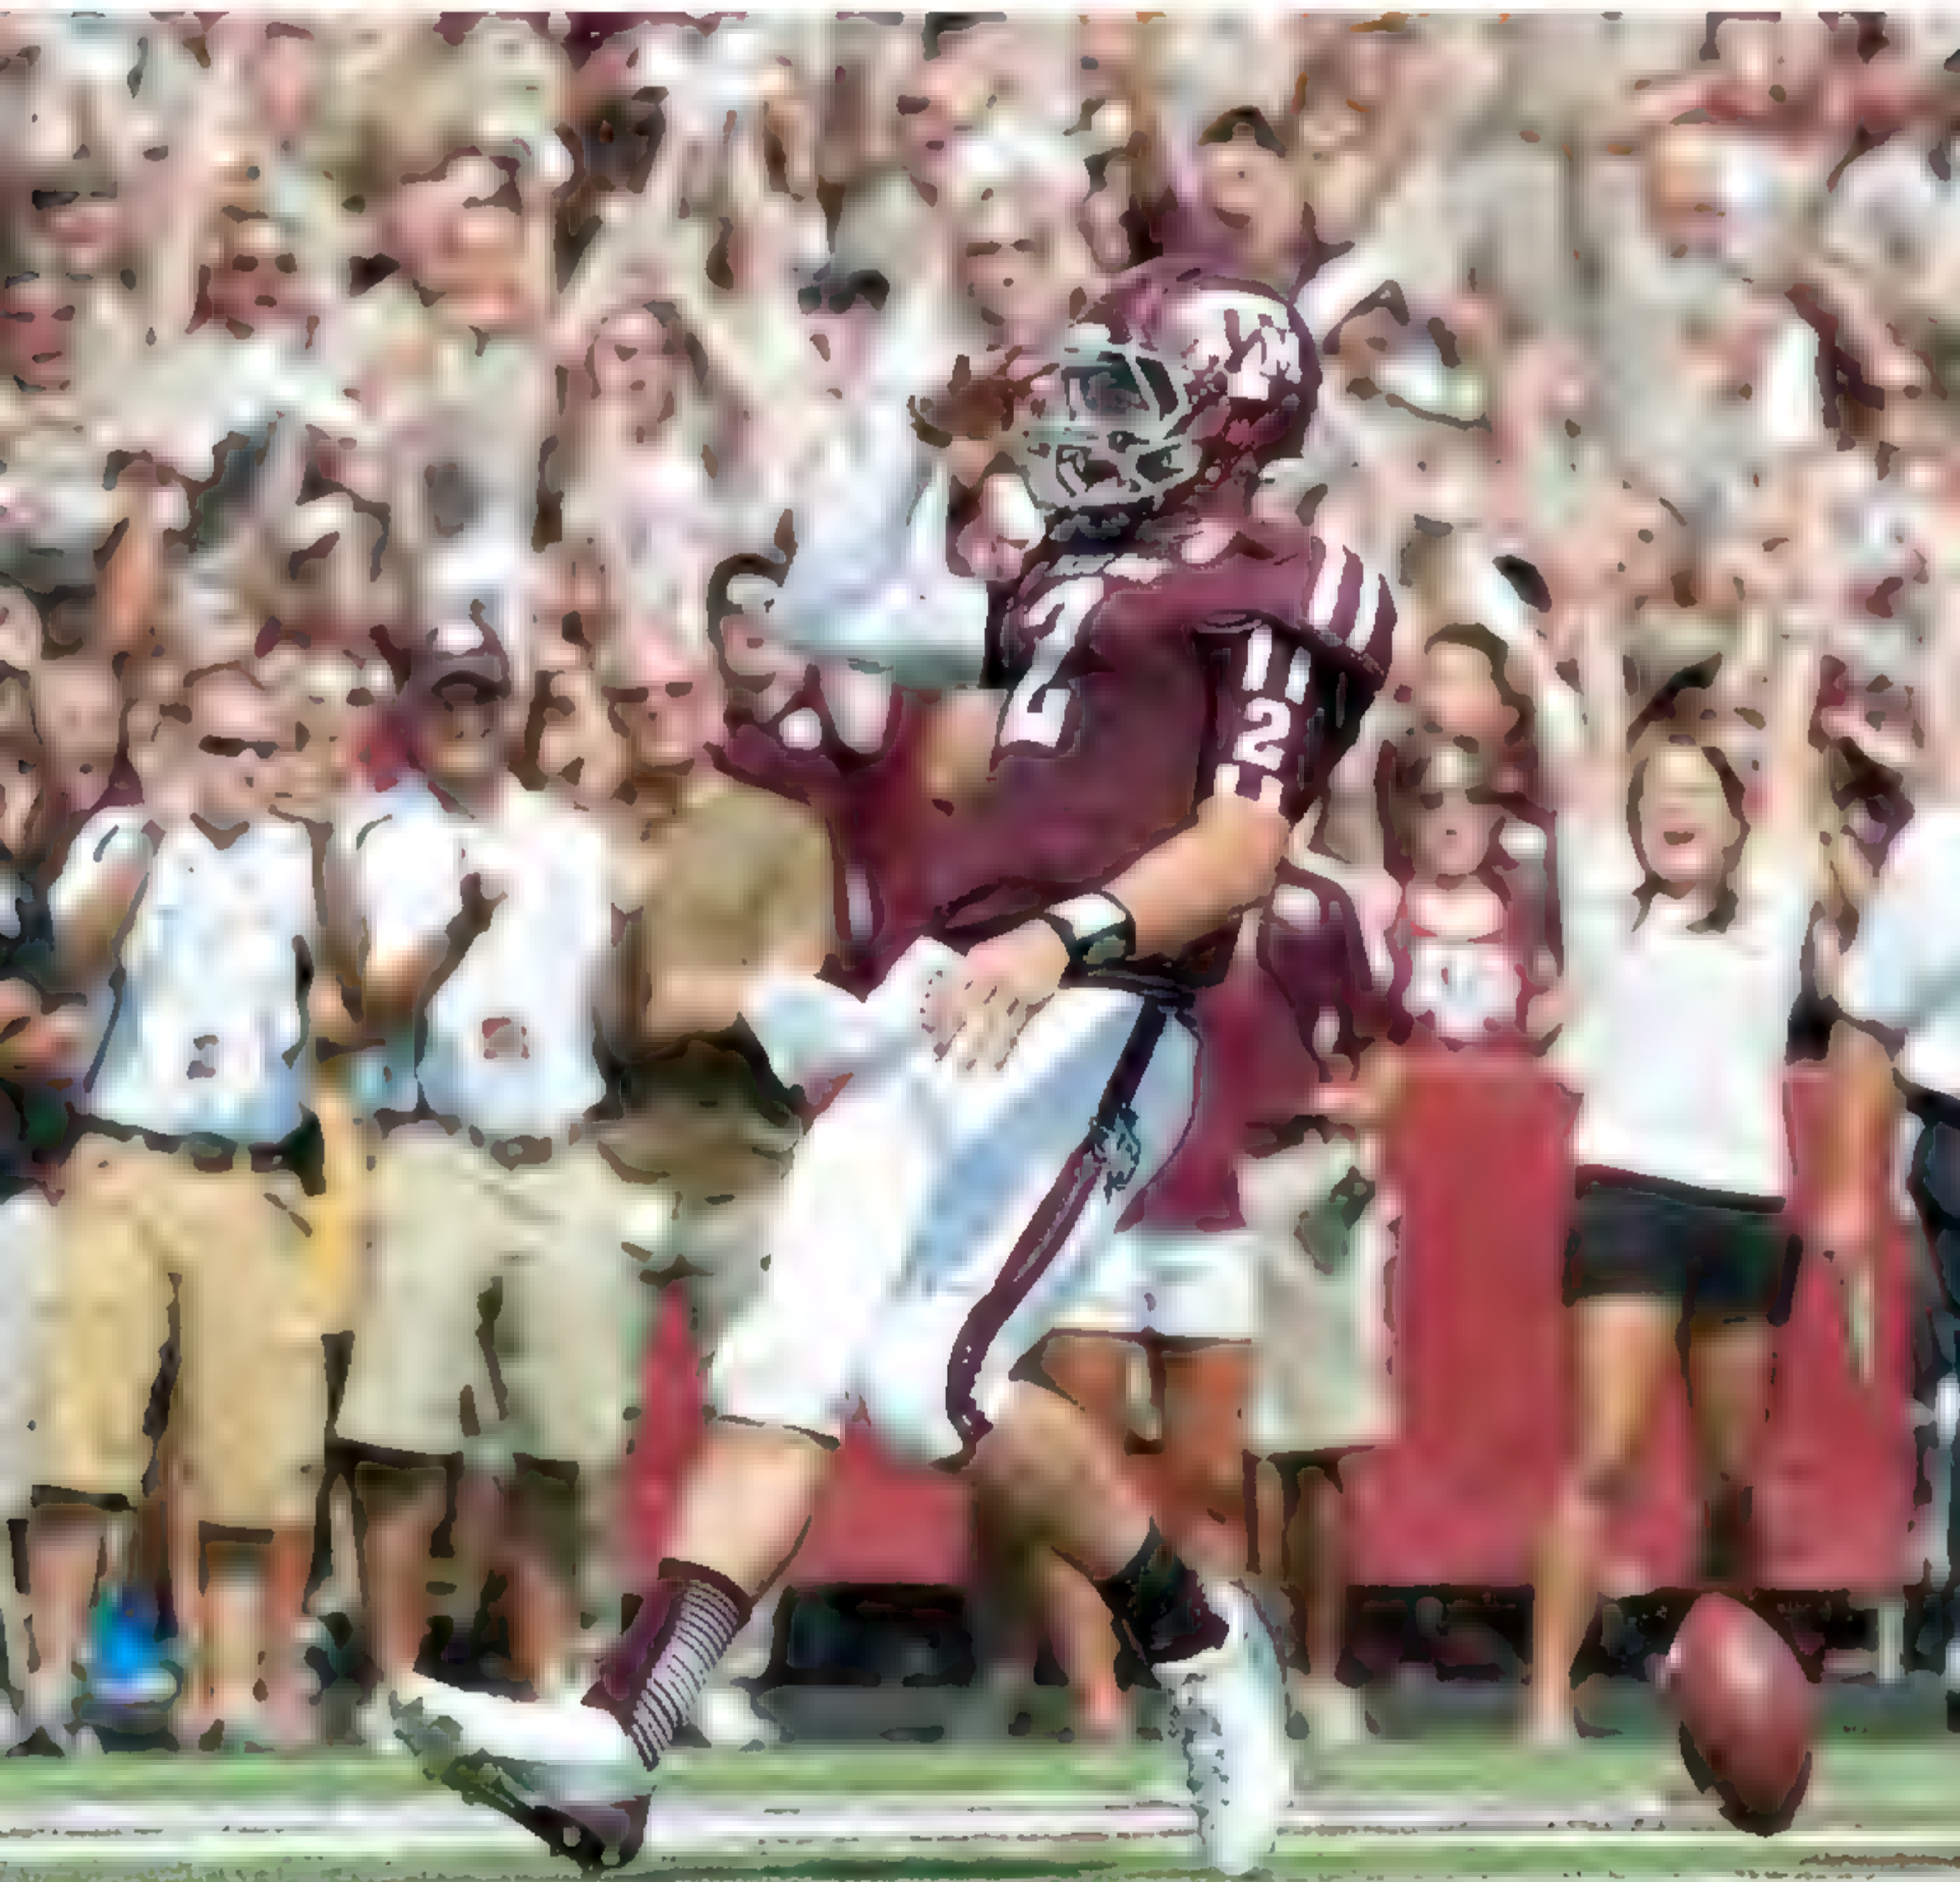

It didn't take much research to find what we had been missing just down the road in Lexington, Texas. From the website (snowsbbq.com) you learn they are open just one day a week - only on Saturdays. The line starts early, typically before the doors open at 8 a.m. They stay open until they run out of food, usually well before noon. Their testimonials page is graced with stories of people driving up to six hours just to wait in line when they get there. And in 2008, Texas Monthly named Snow's BBQ the "Best in Texas." This is our kind of place.

Pulling in around 8:15 a.m., we were fortunate to find a relatively short line. I can honestly say I have never had BBQ for breakfast, but there is a first time for everything, and we met the challenge with vigor. We each ordered a sliced brisket sandwich and sausage wrap for our meal, with a side of "always free" Texas ranch-style beans. The staff was friendly, and owner Kerry Bexley and pit-boss Ms. Tootsie Tomanetz answered all of the questions from our curious minds.

From the first bite, I was hooked. The smokey-and-slightly-salty taste left me craving more. So much more, in fact, that I had to get back in line to order another sandwich.

It is that good. And it is definitely worth the wait. AM

TEXAS A&M FOOTBALL [GAME 1: FLORIDA GATORS 20, AGS 17]

Texas A&M freshman quarterback Johnny Manziel saves the 12th Man after scoring his first touchdown in an Aggie uniform against Florida. While A&M's first game as a member of the SEC ended in a disappointing loss to the Gators, there were plenty of bright spots on the field. None were brighter than the sometimes spectacular play of Manziel in his first college game. Johnny Football smashed the Florida defense in the first half, leaving a lasting impression on everyone who witnessed this star in the making's debut. KT

Texas A&M defensive end Treon Ogburn sack SMU quarterback Garrett Gilbert, forcing a fumble by the former Longhorn signal-caller during the first game of the Aggies' 48-3 win over the Mustangs. It was the true freshman's only tackle in the game, but it helped set the tone for a dominating performance by an A&M defense that kept Coach June Jones exclusively off the field for most the first game in his 14-year career. 172 college games. A

GAME DAY MEAL: TUPINAMBA

BY JASON MCCONNELL '01

Pulling into Tupinamba Mexican Restaurant's parking lot – just minutes north of downtown Dallas – the first thoughts that come to mind are big and bold. The arching, lit entryway guides visitors to where the Dominguez family has been serving authentic Mexican dishes for more than 65 years.

Inside, we are greeted by signed pictures of Aggie legends R.C. Slocum and Shelby Metcalf, a huge glowing block A&M logo and signs on the restroom doors labeling them for "Aggies" or "Maggies." After a brief wait, former A&M basketball player and Tupinamba owner Eddie Dominguez '66 – noting our post-SMU game attire – welcomes us to sit back and relax. We quickly noticed that we weren't the only Aggies in the building.

Our first impressions were not limited to the atmosphere, as the tastes and flavors were just as big and bold as the entryway. From the "Shelby Metcalf Dip," the "R.C. Slocum Aggie Special" and the "12th Man Steak Special," there was something for everyone in our party. There was even a three-way chicken dish called the "t.u. Special" for our friends in Austin.

For starters, we couldn't miss out on the "Tupy Tacos," a deep fried beef taco served the same hot-and-fresh way since 1947. For our entrees, Brian and I each chose variations of the carnitas – slow cooked chunks of pork finished by quick frying – served with rice, beans, guacamole and pico de gallo. I ordered the "Pork Soto," which was the same carnitas covered with spicy chili ancho sauce and served with tortillas.

While waiting for the main course, everyone at the table had their fill of the amazing salsa and warm chips. It was so amazing, in fact, that we each bought orders of salsa to take back to our brides, Kim and Katie, in College Station.

Our meals did not disappoint. Around the table, everyone raved about their order. The "Suicide Nachos" and the "#8 Sour Cream Chicken Enchiladas" were big hits – and both are believed to have been introduced to the Dallas area by the Dominguez family back in 1947. But for Brian and I, the carnitas were king.

As a self-proclaimed Mexican food connoisseur, Tupinamba delivers big, bold flavors with every dish not found at other restaurants, and I highly recommend a visit. You can rest assured that AI's next road trip to Dallas will include another stop at this Aggie favorite. AI

JOHNNY MANZIEL

AWARD WATCH

While the schedule will get more challenging as the season progresses, first-year starter Johnny Manziel has an excellent shot at earning SEC All-Freshman and Freshman All-American honors.

JAMEILL SHOWERS (SO-1L)

MATT JOECKEL (SO-SQ)

OFFENSE [QUARTERBACK]

Johnny Manziel won a highly-competitive battle for the starting job during fall camp after making significant strides over the summer. While the talented redshirt freshman from Kerrville Tivy improved his passing abilities, it was the development in decision-making that earned him the highly-coveted starting quarterback job. As he has shown in the Aggies' first three games in 2012, "Johnny Football" has a rare knack for making plays that should be fun to watch for years to come. Leading up to the season, sophomore backups Jameill Showers and Matt Joeckel both showed that they are more than capable of running Khiff Kingsbury's offense should their number be called. Showers clearly has the strongest arm in the stable and Joeckel has steadily improved since last spring. True freshman Matt Davis will redshirt this season as he makes the adjustment from high school to college football.

CHRISTINE MICHAEL (SR-3L)
Running Back

[RUNNING BACK]

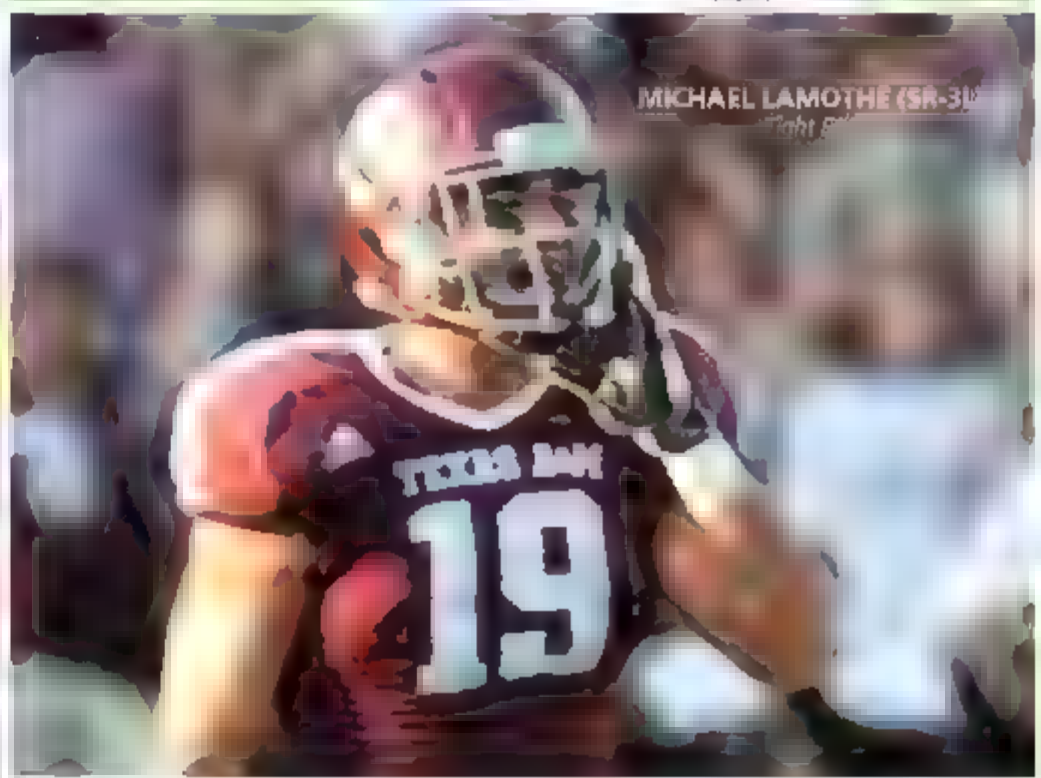

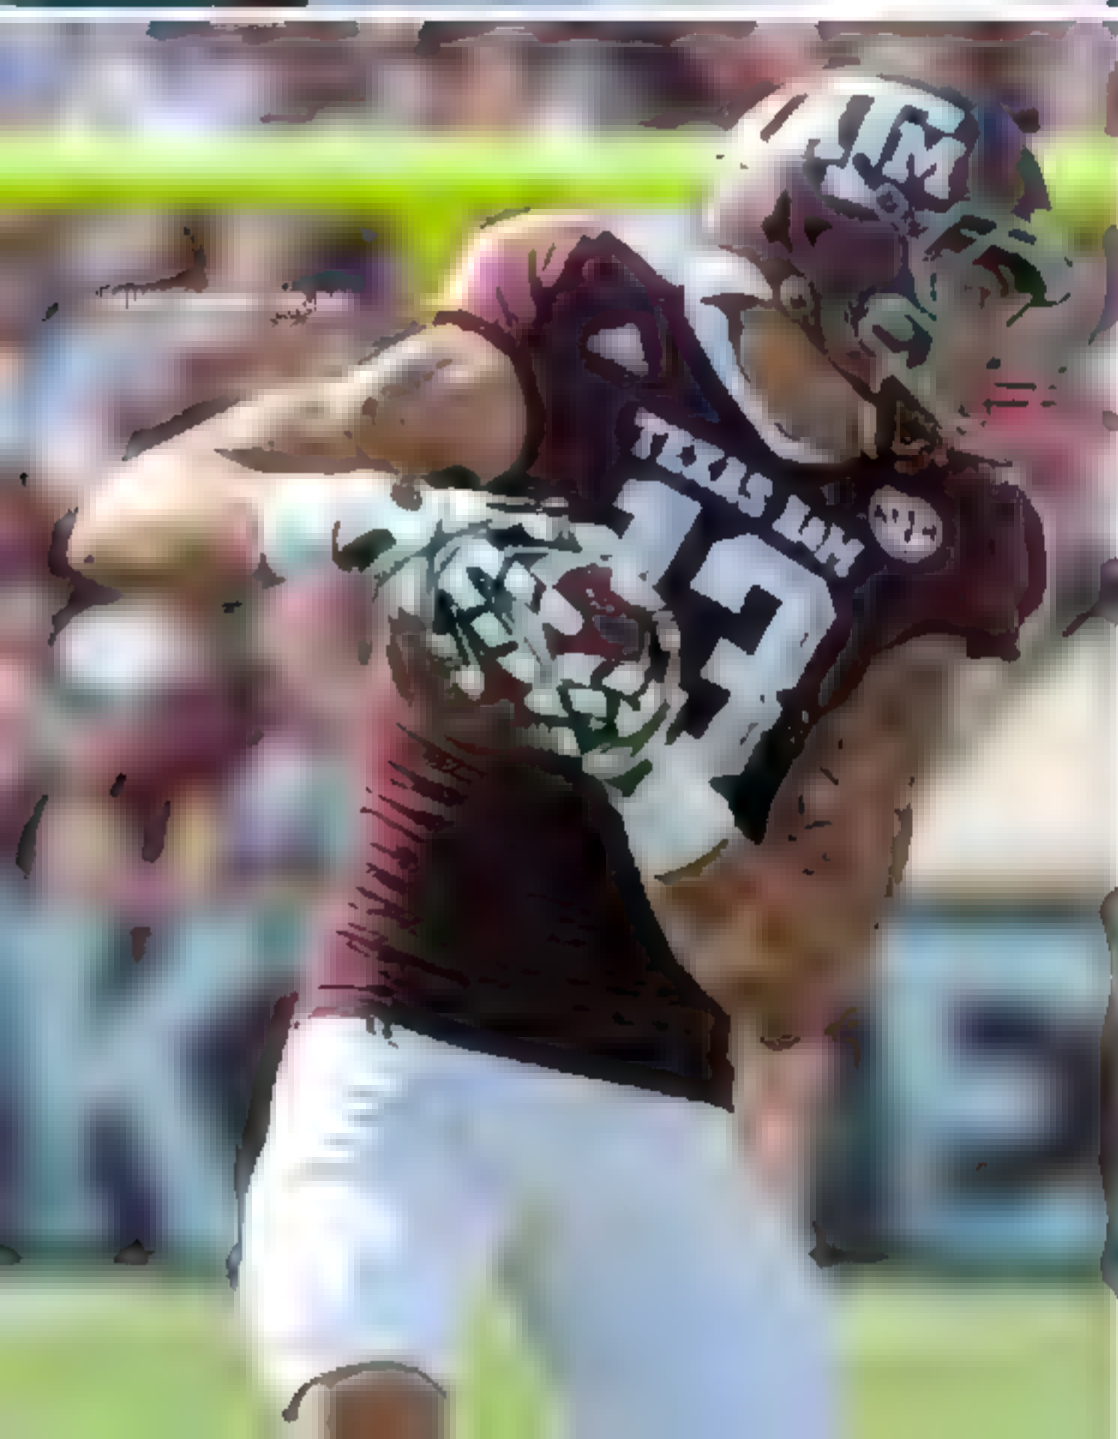

While depth at the position is a concern, senior Christine Michael headlines a solid stable of Aggie running backs. The veteran from Beaumont has had a difficult start to his final campaign in Aggieland as he looks to establish his role in Kliff Kingsbury's offense and increase his draft stock along the way. Sophomore Ben Malena continues to prove his worth every time he touches the football. Perhaps the most complete back on the A&M roster, Malena simply does all the little things well, and has already displayed a surprisingly aggressive style of running in the new system. True freshman Trey Williams might be the most electrifying player on the Aggie squad, and will continue to be targeted with screens and short passes in the flats as the coaches attempt to get the ball in his hands in the open field. Brandon Williams, a five-star talent that transferred from Oklahoma last December, wasn't granted his waiver from the NCAA for immediate eligibility and will be forced to sit out this season. Fortunately, Williams never redshirted at Oklahoma, so he'll still have three years of eligibility at A&M.

AWARD WATCH

Christine Michael began the season on two national award watch lists—the Jonas Wacker Award Best Running Back and the Maxwell Award Most Outstanding Player. If he can overcome the rocky start to his senior campaign, Michael can be a candidate for an SEC recognition. Trey Williams could work his way on to the SEC All-Freshman team as he continues to adjust to the college game.

【 WIDE RECEIVER & TIGHT END 】

The Aggie receiving corps is comprised of a mix of seasoned veterans and talented but inexperienced freshmen. Record-setting wideout Ryan Swope returned for his senior campaign after flirting with an early entry to the NFL Draft, and is in range of most of the A&M career receiving records. Two other seniors, Uzoma Nwachukwu and Kenric McNeal, have done their best to hold off the youngsters by continuing to make plays. Nwachukwu has been a touchdown machine in the earlygoing, while McNeal and talented true freshman Thomas Johnson have been splitting time on the field. Although just a redshirt freshman, Mike Evans is one of, if not the most physically imposing and talented wideout on the Aggie roster. Even with high billing and much anticipation, Evans appears to be better than advertised. Another true freshman, Sabian Holmes, has shown that he is too talented to keep off the field, and sophomore Malcome Kennedy continues to work his way into the rotation. At tight end, senior Michael Lamothe and junior Nehemiah Hicks will likely continue to split time on the field this fall as they determine their role in Kliff Kingsbury's offense. Hicks is a matchup nightmare for opposing defenses, while Lamothe is as disciplined as any player on the roster and excels in run blocking.

AWARD WATCH

Ryan Swope garnered preseason All-SEC recognition this summer and he was named by fellow senior Arizona native Kliff Kingsbury on the Buckle Up! Award Best Receiver watch list. Swope is off to a slow start but clearly has the ability to grab post-season honors as well. If newcomer Mike Evans continues at his current pace, he will at least earn a spot on the SEC All-Freshman team if not more.

PATRICK LEWIS (SR-3L)

AWARD WATCH

An All-American and All-SEC candidate, Joeckel began the season on national watch lists for the Outland Award, Best Lineman Award, and the Rotary Lumberjack Award. Best Lineman or Linebacker. In addition, Joeckel was named to the SEC All-Time member of Sports Illustrated's 2012 Preseason All-American team. Fellow Aggie awarding candidate Jake Matthews made the Outland Award watch list as well. In the middle, Patrick Lewis was named to the Rimington Trophy Most Outstanding Center watch list.

[OFFENSIVE LINE]

names across the state of Texas and throughout SEC country. Unfortunately, after the starting unit, there isn't much experience along the offensive line. Junior Shep Klinke has the most snaps under his belt, but after that there's a significant drop off in game reps. Sophomore Ben Compton and redshirt freshman Joseph Check have spent one year on campus, while true freshmen Mike Matthews and Germain Ifedi round out the two-deep. Early returns on Ifedi have been promising, while Matthews is the latest son of NFL Hall of Famer Bruce Matthews to join the A&M program.

DEFENSE [DEFENSIVE LINE]

It's funny, had we written about the Aggie defensive line prior to the season opener, we probably would have joined in on the "this unit will be the team's weakness" line of prognostication. Man, what a difference a few games can make. On the inside, Kirby Ennis, a junior from Huntsville, and Spencer Nealy, a senior from San Antonio, have been incredibly active. Ennis is a load in the middle, and Nealy's non-stop motor and contagiously competitive attitude have been a tremendous boost for the rest of the unit. At defensive end, junior Damontre Moore has been phenomenal in the early part of the season, and will demand respect as one of the SEC's most feared pass rushers. Complimenting Moore at the other defensive end spot is Julien Obioha, a true freshman from Louisiana. A virtual unknown prior to his arrival, Obioha has been the biggest, and most pleasant surprise from his class thus far. Senior Jonathan Mathis and sophomore Ivan Robinson back up Ennis and Nealy along the interior line, while sophomores Gavin Stansbury and Tyrell Taylor are the backup ends.

AWARD WATCH

Showing his versatility, Damarious Moore began the season on national watch lists for two different positions—the Butkus Award (Best Linebacker) and the Ted Hendricks Award (Defensive End). In a conference dominated by great defensive players, Moore has All-SEC potential. While fellow defensive end Julien Obioha is a candidate for SEC All-Freshman team honors.

STEVEN JENKINS (JR-1L)

SEAN PORTER (SR-3L)

[LINEBACKER]

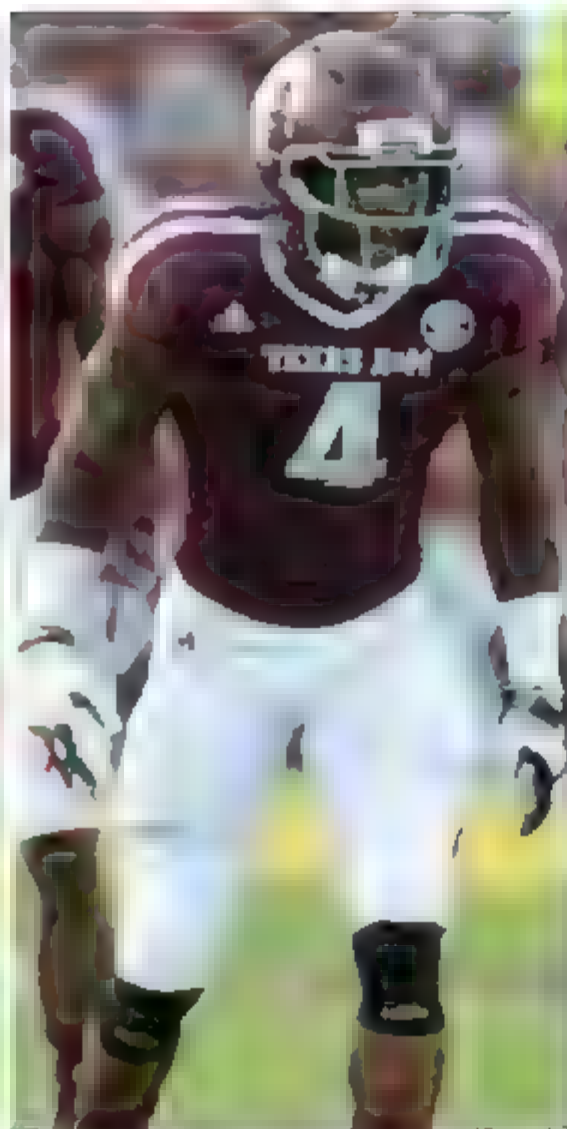

Three experienced veterans headline the Aggie linebacking corps. In the middle, Louisiana native Jonathan Stewart plays the “quarterback” role for the A&M defense. It’s Stewart’s job to make sure everyone is in position and knows their assignment, and so far he’s done an excellent job of getting everyone in the right spot while also leading the team in tackles. A pair of speedy and dependable upperclassmen in Steven Jenkins and Sean Porter flank Stewart’s left and right. Porter, a preseason All-SEC pick, has transitioned from the 3-4 to 4-3 nicely, and Jenkins might be the Aggies’ best defender in space. Behind the starters, there’s youth and inexperience. Sophomore Donnie Baggs is essentially the backup for all three starters, and a pair of first year players in Michael Richardson and Justin Bass round out the two-deep.

AWARD WATCH

Sean Porter entered his senior campaign on just about every award watch list that he was eligible for: Bednarik Award, Top Defensive Player, Nagurski Trophy, Best Defensive Player, Butkus Award, Best Linebacker, and Roten Lombardi Award. Best Linebacker of Linebacker.

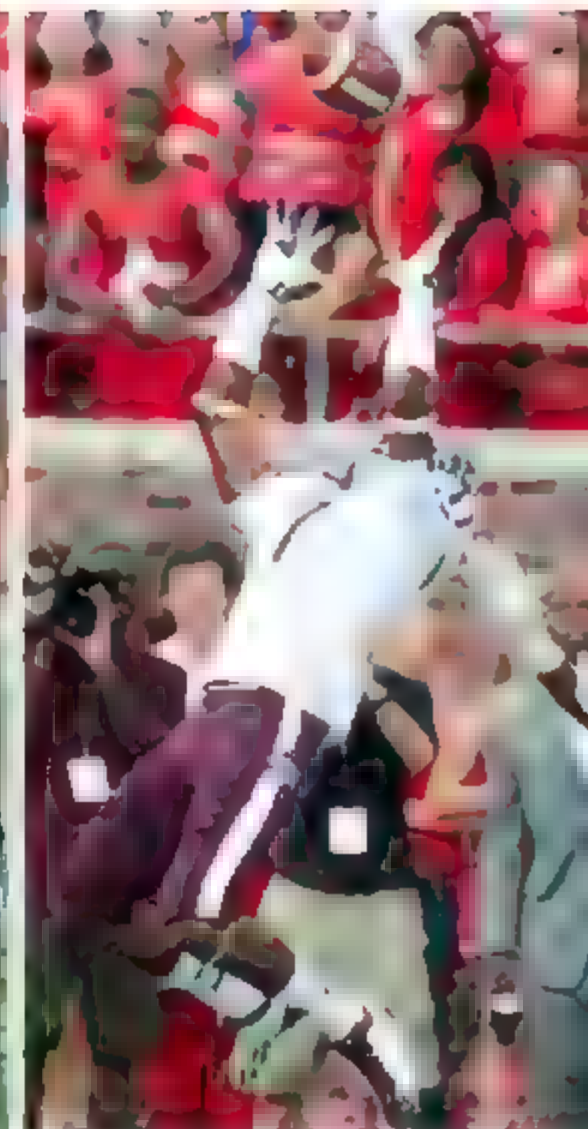

FLOYD RAVEN (SO-1L)

TONEY HURD (JR-2L)

DUSTIN HARRIS (SR-3L)

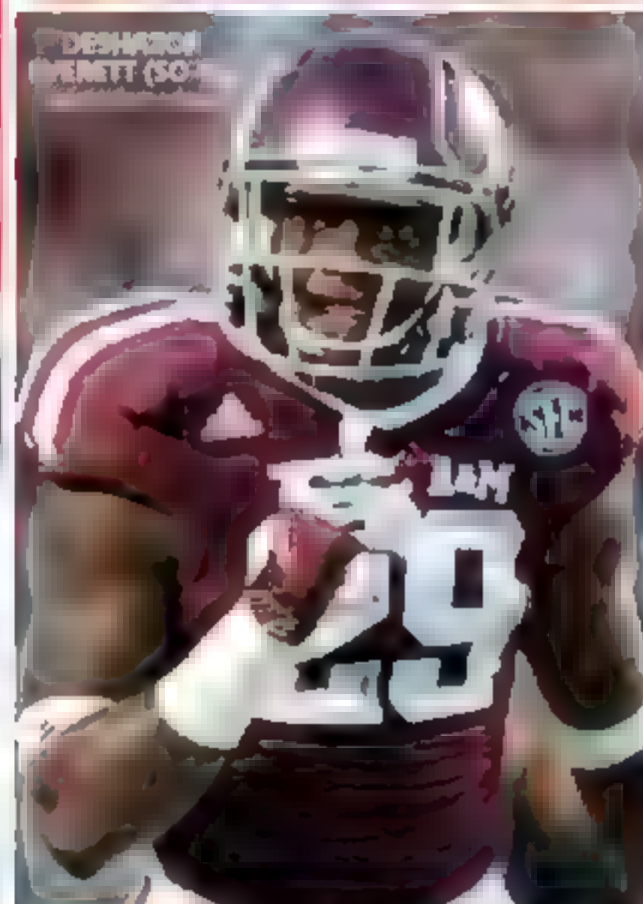

TREMAINE "OTIS" JACOBS (JR-TR)

AWARD WATCH

As a starter on the A&M defense from day one, true freshman cornerback De'Vante Harris has a chance to earn SEC All-Freshman honors at season's end.

[DEFENSIVE BACK]

Trying to piece together the A&M secondary is like trying to put together a puzzle without using the picture on the cover as a guide. At cornerback, true freshman De'Vante Harris won the starting job on one side during fall camp never looked back. An Aggie legacy with tremendous speed and natural coverage abilities, Harris looks to have locked up a starting position for a long time. At safety, senior Steven Terrell has managed to hold off competitors and shored up a starting role. Prior to an early suspension, fellow senior Steven Campbell garnered a starting nod, but after off the field issues forced Campbell out, cornerback Deshazor Everett took over at safety. Moving Everett, who started at the other cornerback position in the season opener, allowed senior Dustin Harris and junior JUCO transfer Tremaine Jacobs to battle for his spot, with Harris taking the job. Junior Toney Hurd, Jr. and sophomore Floyd Raven, Sr. are among the first off the bench in the secondary. Hurd has been very active when defensive coordinator Mark Snyder calls for an extra defensive back on the field.

TAYLOR BERTOLET KICKS

AWARD WATCH

Senior Dustin Harris began the season on the Paul Hornung Award (Most Versatile Player) watch list and is a candidate for All-SEC honors as a punt returner.

SPECIAL TEAMS

With question marks at kicker, punter and deep snapper, special teams were a big concern for the A&M coaching staff going into the season. At punter, senior Ryan Epperson beat out sophomore Drew Kaser for the starting job for the second year in a row, and he is off to a great start in 2012. Entering his redshirt freshman season, kicker Taylor Bertolet had the difficult task of stepping into some pretty big shoes left by 2011 Groza Award winner Randy Bullock. The Pennsylvania native has not been tested much on field goals so far this season, however he has done well on kickoffs and extra points. During fall camp, the coaches were desperately searching for someone they could trust at deep snapper. Then, junior right tackle Jake Matthews stepped up and showed that he was more than capable of adding to his responsibilities on the field. There's a new face at kick returner as the Aggies hope to capitalize on true freshman running back Trey Williams' dynamic athletic ability. His opportunities have been limited thus far, but the game-changing skills are certainly there. Speaking of game-changers, defending NCAA punt return statistical champion Dustin Harris has proven that he can be a real asset on special teams. The record-setting Harris led the NCAA in 2011 with an 18.6 punt return average and has already made his presence felt this season. ■

THE RIVALRY CONTINUES...

BY BRIAN DAVIS '01

If you thought Texas A&M's move to the SEC meant the end of the rivalry with the University of Texas, think again.

While the Aggies and Longhorns may not face each other in NCAA competition for the foreseeable future, the archrivals will continue their battles among the 34 Sport Clubs on campus during the 2012-13 school year. From archery, baseball and bowling to water polo, water ski and wrestling – and everything in between – there are some serious competitions that regularly have conference and national championship implications.

Sport Clubs at A&M date as far back as the early 1900s, with the Aggie Fencing Club first appearing in 1905. In 1974, the clubs became an association under the Department of Recreational Sports.

Today, the Texas A&M Sport Clubs Association provides more than 1,000 current students the ability to compete against other college athletes across the country in 34 different sports. And with the support of Sport Clubs Director Keith Joseph and his staff, the students are also responsible for all aspects of operating and managing the organizations.

"The student officers are in charge of many aspects of their club operations," Joseph said. "We give them guidance and make sure they are following the policies and procedures of the university, the Sport Clubs program and the Department of Rec Sports. They hire the coaches, run practices and set up their schedules. We're here to support them, but it gives students the opportunity to run their own teams."

The students not only have the opportunity to compete athletically, they are also learning administrative skills, leadership skills and transferable skills such as conflict resolution.

"Some officers don't realize that the leadership opportunities they have are actually preparing them for the real world," he said.

Joseph has even heard from previous club presidents about their real world job interviews focusing on the experiences they had when operating and managing their organizations.

The students learn fundraising skills as well, as each club is responsible for helping pay for their travel. Collectively, the clubs have brought in close to $700,000 in each of the last few years. Last year alone, the Aggies went on 300 trips to destinations all over the country.

Each club is extremely competitive, and for many of the sports, the club level is as high as it gets in the country. In several sports, the A&M clubs compete against NCAA sponsored programs at other universities – and often beat them.

"Many of our athletes could have played at the NCAA level at other schools, but wanted to be at A&M more," Joseph said.

The Archery Club is a prime example of the caliber of athletes who compete for A&M Sport Clubs. Two women from the program competed for the USA Archery team in the 2012 Summer Olympics in London.

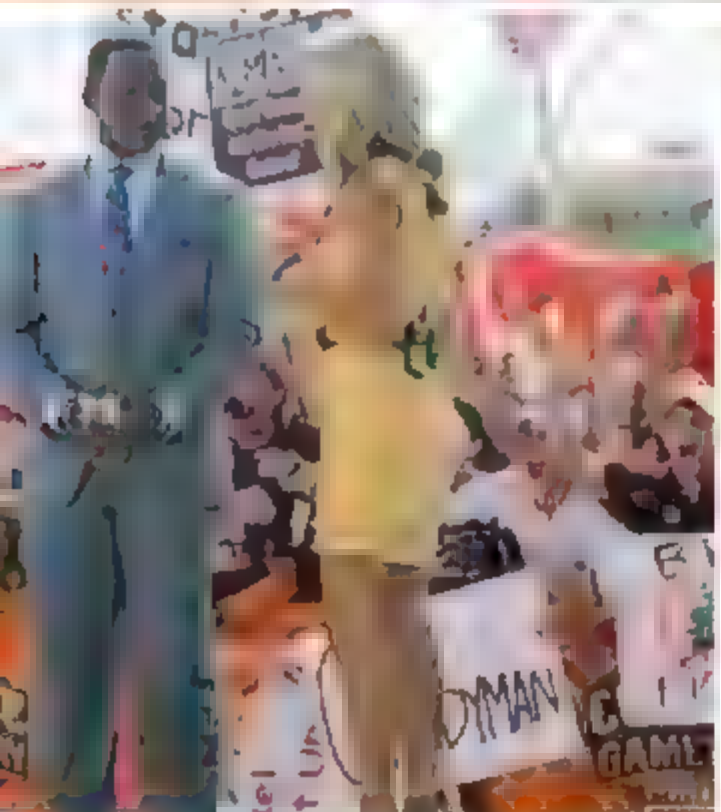

Many of the clubs have recreational sides as well, where students can join to learn how to play the sport. There's also the side that is there to compete for championships, and the Aggies compete for – and win – a lot of them.

In fact, since the association was formed, the clubs have combined to win over 150 national championships and 250 regional or conference championships. During 2011-12, the clubs brought home 14 national titles. The Aggies claimed 16 titles the previous year. Suffice it to say, if there was a Sears Director's Cup for Sport Clubs, Texas A&M would be a contender for the top spot every year.

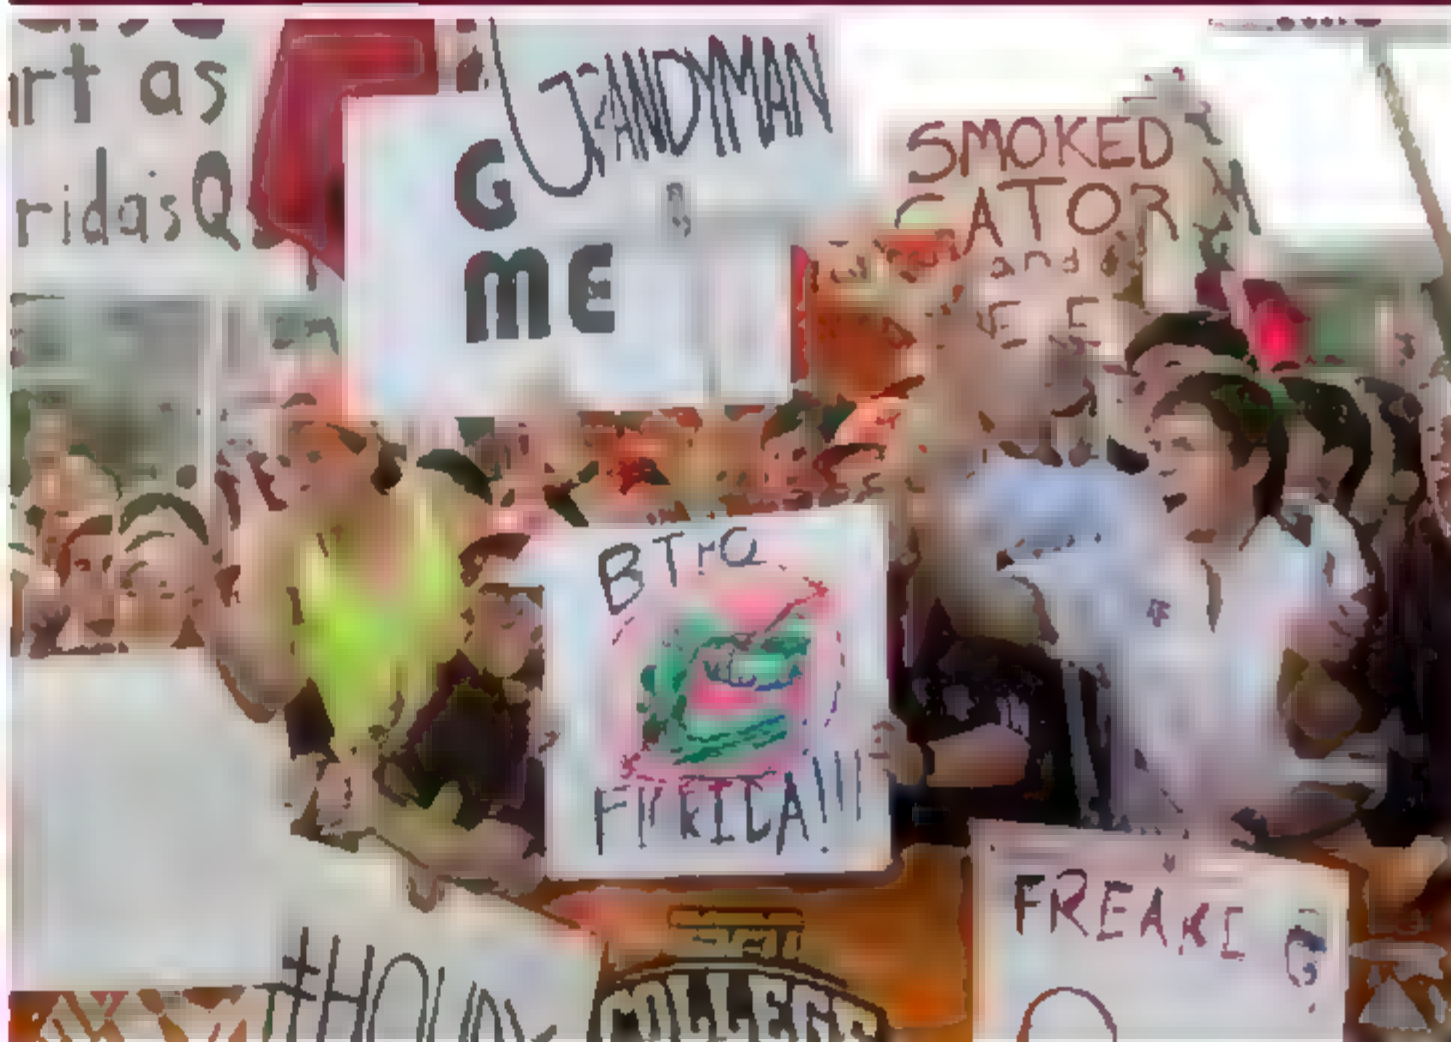

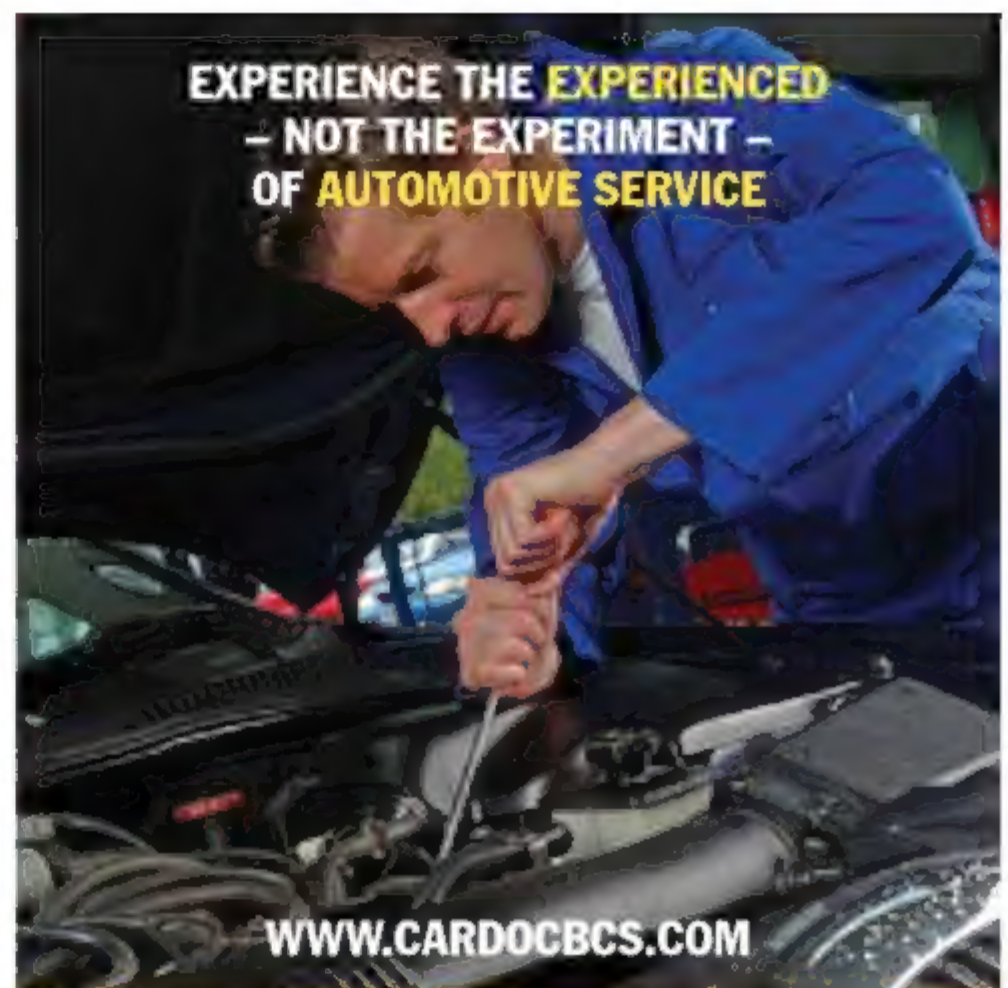

With the highly anticipated move up to the SEC for A&M's NCAA sports, and the elite Sport Clubs on campus still competing against the Longhorns and other traditional rivals, Aggie fans get the best of both worlds. Indeed, the rivalry lives on this fall. Don't miss it ■

Texas A&M's SEC opener against Florida on Sept. 8 brought ESPN's College GameDay to Aggieland for the first time since 2006. According to an independent analysis, the opening football weekend generated more than $6.5 million in media exposure for A&M and significant social media buzz for the university. In addition to GameDay, Aggieland was featured multiple times on ABC and ESPN stations throughout the weekend.
